

Helping the project profession deliver better

An introduction to the APM
Corporate Partnership Programme

Because when projects
succeed, society benefits

The project profession is growing. As an organisation delivering projects, you're part of the bigger picture.

Our Corporate Partnership Programme is aimed at organisations who are serious about developing their project management capability and community, who want to learn from each other and be aligned to the only chartered membership organisation for the project profession in the world.

You'll join like-minded professionals from different organisations, large and small, with the same passion for the profession as you.

Keep up to date, give your organisation a voice and be at the heart of the project profession.

Show your organisation's commitment with corporate partnership

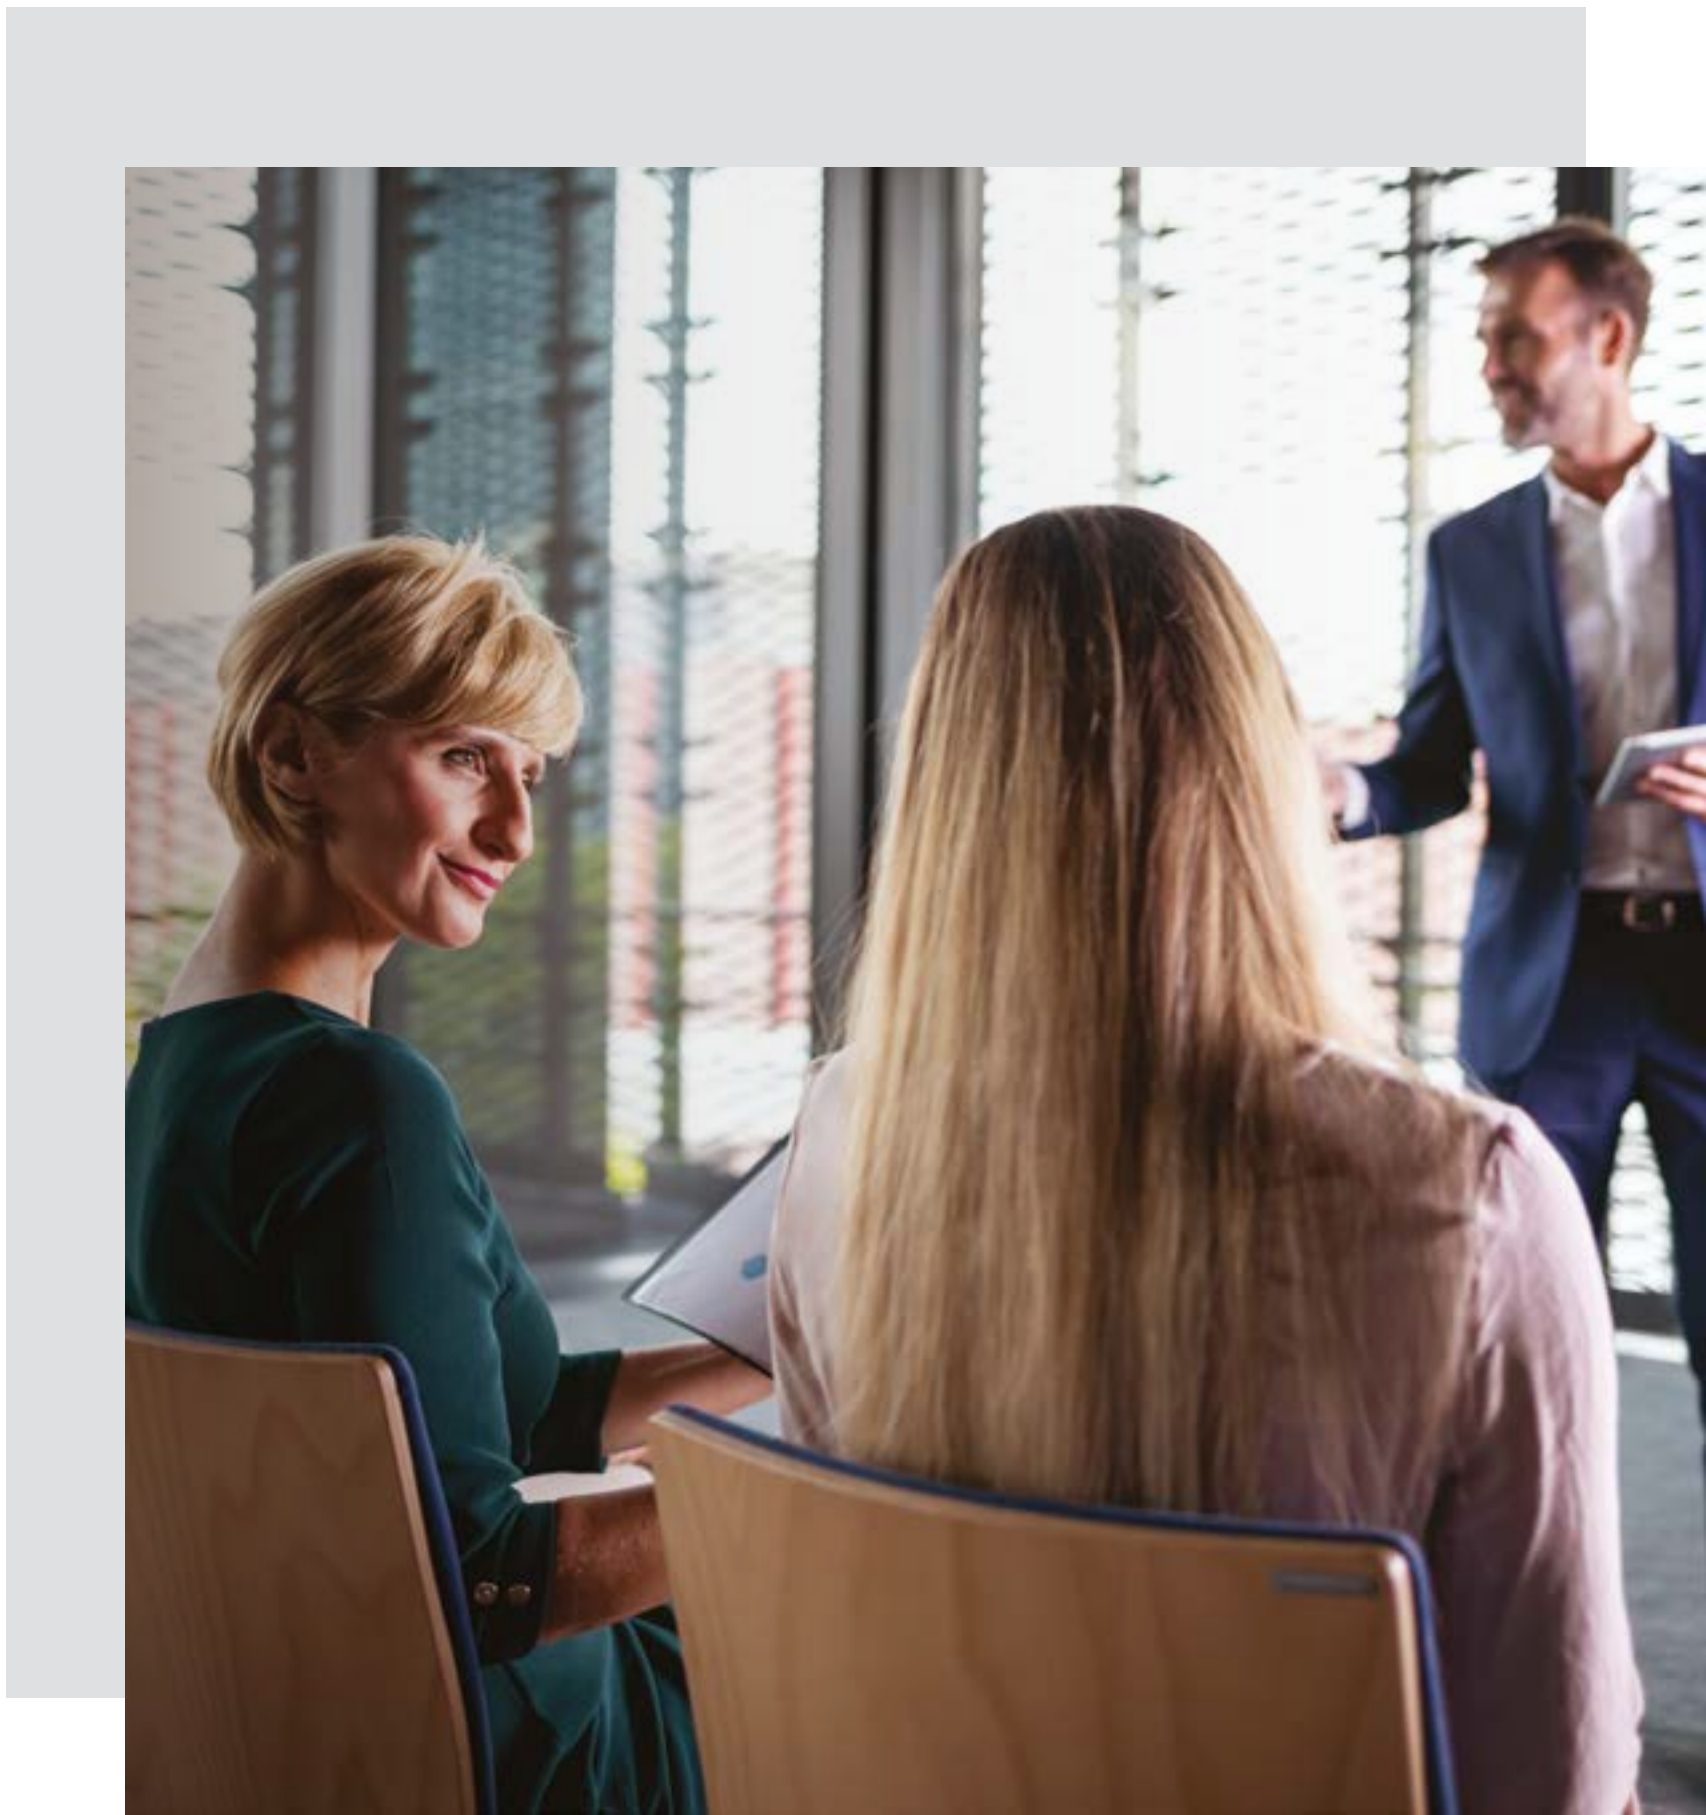

We know that engaging with like-minded organisations is vital. We believe our Corporate Partnership Programme should be about the power relationships have in shaping our profession. We're here to support you. We offer you the ability to influence and have a voice. We value your input on our strategy, frameworks and programmes, taking a future-focused approach that adapts to your changing needs as well as those of the profession.

Corporate Partners benefit from a unique network of pan sector project professionals with special events, peer-to-peer discussions and the chance to join our Corporate Advisory Group so we can share knowledge and learn from each other. If building expertise and developing your teams internally is a key focus, excellent project management has significance beyond organisations alone. It's about broader issues affecting all of us, from skills shortages to the environment. By collaborating, we can start to solve these challenges together by helping the project profession deliver better. Because when projects succeed, society benefits.

Corporate Partner

If you're committed to your employees' professional development, join us as a Corporate Partner and access the tools and resources that help enhance your project capability.

What you get:

- A dedicated Partnership Development Manager (PDM), who'll work with you pro-actively to develop your project delivery capability, ensuring maximum value from our partnership with you.
- Through your PDM, the opportunity to engage and share knowledge with other APM Corporate Partners on key project, programme and portfolio matters.
- The APM Corporate Partner signifier to show your commitment to the project profession and enhance trust and confidence with clients, employees, suppliers and peers.
- A wide range of digital tools and resources.
- The latest version of our APM Body of Knowledge, APM Competence Framework and role profiles, plus Interest Network guides and more.
- Regular interactive webinars from leading sector specialists and subject matter experts.
- Opportunities to apply for a position within the Corporate Advisory Group, to steer the conversation and contribute to the direction of the profession and attend in-person events exclusive for our Partners.
- A subscription to Project journal – our magazine containing articles, case studies, interviews and the very latest in project management news, plus access to the full digital archive of the publication.
- 25% discount on your teams first year of individual membership, bringing their career progression and professional recognition to the forefront.
- Opportunities to collaborate on innovative global research and the development of professional standards and qualifications, by sharing your knowledge and experience to help drive the future of the profession.
- Complimentary tickets to selected APM conferences.

Your dedicated Partnership Development Manager

As a Corporate Partner you'll have a Partnership Development Manager (PDM).

You will have regular meetings with your PDM who will:

- Act as a consultant to develop your project delivery capacity and capability.
- Understand your ongoing business needs and match our resources appropriately.
- Help to raise the awareness of our resources throughout your project management community.
- Introduce you and your team to other members of staff at our head office, other Corporate Partners, our volunteers and professionals in the wider community.
- Keep you up to date with what's going on at APM and the wider profession.
- Support you through the Corporate Accreditation process.
- Explain the application process and routes for the Chartered Project Professional (ChPP) standard.

What our partners say

We’re proud to have a wide variety of organisations aligned to our Corporate Partnership Programme, spanning multiple sectors including energy and utilities, healthcare, engineering, and charities large and small from around the world.

Southern Water recognises that APM as the “go to” organisation for best practice in project, programme and portfolio management. Through corporate partnership and pending accreditation, and alignment with APM’s ChPP standard for aspiring professionals.

Southern Water

The partnership with APM has helped us support our project management community. We’ve used the information to define our professional standards and offer our people a clear line of sight of what’s expected from them, to then help them to understand where they should focus their development effort.

Computacenter

The reason why Amey Consulting became a Corporate Partner was to give the business access to material, guidance and mentorship as to how to align itself to APM and ultimately obtain Corporate Accreditation.

Amey Consulting

As a people business, attracting and retaining the best project managers is fundamental to our success. We regard Corporate Partner status as a very clear statement of our commitment to professionalism and the development of our staff. It helps raise the profile of project management as a profession within our business.

WSP

The more organisations that partner with APM will further establish the continuing efforts to promote and join an organisation promoting ethics, technical knowledge and practical experience to provide working professionals with the tools and future learning material and global network to succeed and continually improve.

Mott Macdonald

QinetiQ employees have been given access to collaborate and network with people in the same marketplace and to listen to corporate webinars that are offered as part of our partnership. It also benefits us by enabling us to sponsor and attend events as well as support our project management community in our aspiration to develop our capability.
